IGSP Summer Fellowship Program
Duke University

May 29, 2012 - August 3, 2012

Engage in research through the 10-week summer fellowship program within the interdisciplinary Duke Institute for Genome Sciences & Policy (IGSP).

Gain first-hand experience in independent research and an appreciation of major questions in genome sciences and policy through faculty-mentored research projects in the genome sciences, genome policy, genomic and personalized medicine, computational biology and systems biology, as well as additional scheduled activities including weekly discussions with faculty, student research presentations, planned social activities, and an end-of-summer poster symposium.

Open to current freshmen and sophomores.

APPLICATION DEADLINE IS FEBRUARY 17, 2012

In addition to completing the application, a transcript and letters of recommendation should be sent to:

IGSP Summer Fellowship Program
c/o Jessica Crowley
101 Science Drive
2180 CIEMAS
Box 3382
Durham, NC 27708

A current official transcript in a school-sealed envelope is required. Please instruct your Registrar's Office to send one copy of your official transcript to the address above. Instructions for faculty recommenders can be found here.

If you have any questions or concerns, please contact Jessica Crowley at jessica.crowley@duke.edu or 919.684.5256.

Support for the 2012 IGSP Summer Fellowship Program is provided by the Duke Institute for Genome Sciences & Policy, the James B. Wyngaarden, M.D. Fund for Genome Ethics, Law & Policy, The Snyderman Family Fund, and the Duke Center for Systems Biology.
